LETTERS

Not in our Backyard!

Dear Sir

The residents of Baronsmere Road have petitioned the Council to close off access to and from that road to the High Road. The benefits of this are obvious; less traffic equals less pollution, less noise - for the residents of Baronsmere Road that is.

If this scheme goes ahead other local residents will be exposed to more pollution, more noise - as cars denied access to and from the High Road here are forced to find alternative routes along Summerlee Avenue, Park Hall Road, Fortis Green, Fairlawn Avenue, Durham, Lincoln, Leicester and Huntingdon Roads.

The proposed extension of the traffic island in the High Road will add to congestion and local businesses will be adversely affected.

The movements of the emergency services will be hampered and slowed.

What we need is to have parking properly restricted and enforced. For instance double yellow lines around the corners of Summerlee Avenue with Southern Road, Baronsmere Road with Park Hall Road and Ingram Road (and on all roads in the neighbourhood); and limit parking on the High Road to one hour. (I have never, in my four years in the area, seen a traffic warden in East Finchley High Road).

T. Campos.

Cherry Tree Road, N2.

Apathy

Dear Sir

We are very busy too, but must correct the letter regarding "Apathy of Residents" in Issue 43 of The Archer.

The East Finchley Festival is not run by "a Village Society", but by a group of local volunteers with a core committee of around ten people, who meet solely for this purpose.

The Festival itself is testament to the non-apathy of local people; we are now in our thirteenth year, and last year's Festival attracted around 5,000 people. The stalls run by local trades- and craftspeople are a major focus of the day. Before the day itself, sponsorship by local businesses and local events such as jumble sales have provided the majority of funding for the event.

The writer of your earlier letter may be particularly pleased to hear about the Parade that traditionally begins the Festival. For a short time, we see traffic on the High Road replaced with musicians and children in fancy dress. The time and effort which these youngest members of our community put into their costumes must in itself show that some residents at least are prepared to forego their "apathy".

Yours faithfully
Suzie Bousfield
On behalf of the East Finchley Festival.

Ear Bashing

Dear Sir

Diana Cormack (November Archer) makes some valuable points on child discipline. In the category of actual blows "a clip round the ear" was a particularly nasty punishment inflicted both in schools and by parents.

It has recently been advocated as a suitable way to chastise young people who indulge in unsociable behaviour.

It is not children who deserve punishment for bad behaviour but their parents who are responsible for that behaviour.

But the consequence of "clip round the ear" is usually dealt with by the Ear, Nose and Throat Departments of our hospitals since this can often lead to malfunctioning of the ear and deafness and can also trigger the onset of tinnitus.

Physical assault on the young in any form by adults is bad and betrays an inability either to set good example or an inability in adults to curb their violence on those smaller than themselves which I believe is known as bullying.

Yours Sincerely,

Jack Shapiro

Vice-President, The Royal National Institute for Deaf People

Savage Criticism

Dear Sir

Reading your column by Ricky Savage, although often quite witty, I think he is wrong to discredit the widow of the late headmaster who was stabbed to death.

What has the fact that Mrs Lawrence's husband was headmaster of a Catholic school got to do with it, I detect an anti-Catholic bias in his writing.

What bugs me is what gives Ricky Savage the right to sneer at a very brave lady, one who after suffering a very sad family tragedy, went on to do her best, through the media, to help make people more aware of the danger and ease with which knives can be bought.

Her Christian values shine through when she states she feels sorry for her husband's murderer and forgives him.

I would like to add how I like your paper and look forward to receiving it.

Ms. Jane Allen

Park Hall Road, N2.
